A. I understood Mrs. Payne to be the aust of Mrs. Parish? as for Miss Heilitz I don't know; those two ladies were in Mr. Parish's house frequently, Mrs. Payne sometimes two or three times a week or more, and sometimes less, according to her health; as to Miss Heilz, it was something similar; not quite as often as Mrs. Payne I should say. Q. What subject most interested Mr. Parish? A. I don't remember ever seeing or knowing by Mr. Parish that he was interested in any subject. Q. What did he seem to care most about? A. Eating seemed to be his predominant passion. Q. What efforts were made at different times to ascertain Mr. Parish's wants? A. Not a great deal of effort, that I should say; I have made a great many efforts myself; that is ali. Q. What efforts were made by others besides yourself? A. That can't say; Mrs. Parish sometimes would make an effort to find out what Mr. Parish wanted on marketing affairs; anything she did I had no knowledge of. Q. Do you mean to say that you witnessed no other efforts of Mrs. Parish to get at his wants and meaning? A. She has made efforts to make out what Mr. Parish wanted several times in my hearing, but she could not; I would then leave the room. Q. Were the subjects upon which she made these efforts, of which you have last spoken, other than those relating to enting? A. They were; they consisted of what I didn't know anything about; I knew nothing about business transactions. Q. In what form were these efforts made? A. She would ask Mr. Parish i he wanted anything that she knew anything about, and he would repeat "Yanne," "Yanne," "Yanne," "Yanne", "Y about business transactions. Q. In what form were these efforts made? A. She would ask Mr. Parish if he wanted anything that she knew anything about, and he would repeat "Yanne," "Yanne," "Yanne,"—put his singers up, with gestures of the head, and nods; and then she would suggest different things, such as, "You would like to see Ir. Deladied or Mr. Marcoo?" "Is it anything about going down town, or business, or store, or marketing?" and all such like. After a continuation for ten or afteen minutes, I thought it was not my place to stop there any longer, and I would leave the room, and when I returned Mrs. Parish would say, "Thomas, I have found out what Mr. Parish wanted," and I would say in reply. "I am happy to hear it," but I did not know what it was, as a matter of course birs. Parish did not tell me. Q. In any of these questions put to him by Mrs. Parish, of which you have new spoken, did she mention to him his brothers and sistors? A. Not at any time. Q. What were Mr. Parish's habits while you were in his camployment in respect to neatness of person or dress? A. Mr. Parish paid very little attention to his dress, he appeared to be anxious aboots a shirt button, or anything of that kind off his shirt, that was the only thing I remarked in his wearing appeared; I dressed Mr. Parish, with the instructions of Mrs. Parish, nearly at all times; I were going anywhere in particular, Mrs. Parish, Thomas, and cost also." Q What was Mr. Parish's appearance in person and dress in respect of neatness? A I should say the me. "Put such and such pants on Mr. Parish. A. Q. Did Mrs. Parish go into the cellar; A. Mrs. Parish did not come down to the cellar; she might have, three or four steps on the stairs, but I did not see her in the cellar. Q. How large a part of the cellar did you go through A. We went as far as the wine cellar, which is at the further end of the cellar around by the walls. Q. Did you turn back from the wine cellar? A. We turned back from the wine cellar? A. We turned back from the wine cellar? A. We made our way up, but not into the kitchen; we got on the landing from the cellar, in through the passageway into the library. Q. Who said cranberries? A. To the best of my opinion, the cook. Q. Where was that said? A. Just as we were commencing to come up stairs, in the cellar. Q. Does the cellar extend sunder the whole house? A. I believe so; but it is divided into halves, and that was one half we were in. Q. What things did you name to Mr. Parish on that occasion? A. I don't recollect what I did name. Q. Do you recollect what anybody else did name except the cranberries? A. I recollect what I did name. Q. Do you recollect what anybody else did name except the cranberries? A. I recollect distinctly that cakes and coffee, such as making it stronger, and birds, and all such things, were mentioned in my hearing to Mr. Parish, anything that would be likely to be used at breakfast? A. I believe so; the sikely to be used at breakfast? A. I believe so; of the kitchen, the cook supposed that would not be likely to be used at breakfast? A. I believe there was at the commencement, as Mr. Parish went into the pot house of the kitchen, as the commencement, as Mr. Parish went into the pot house of the kitchen, as the commencement, as Mr. Parish went into the pot house of the kitchen, as the commencement and that was what led her to speak in thut the minus the partish or the way to such the; he sacreded unde

Further Accounts of the Storm of Sunday.

EFFECTS OF THE LIGHTNING—A WOMAN KILLED IN

BROOKLYN—DISASTERS IN THE BAY—RECOVERY

BODIES, ETC.

The effects of the thunder storm of Sunday were much more severe than was at first supposed. In addition to the places mentioned in yesterday's Herain as being struck by lightning, we learn that the house No. 546 Grand street was also much injured, and policeman Van Tassel, who was standing near it, felt the shock sensibly. It appears the lightning struck the chimney, scattering the bricks in every direction. The electric fluid continued in its course to run down the rafters, tearing out the side of the house some twelve feet, and down to the show window, in front of the store, where it passed into the earth. Although there were several persons in the house at the time, fortunately no one was injured.

The lightning also had its effects in other portions of the city. A Fremont and Payton flag, which was stretched across Houston street, hear the river, was torn down by the storm, and brought with it the two chimnies to which the ropes were attached, though no personal injury resulted.

A tree on the Battery was struck, its branches torn away, and the bark knecked off. One singular circumstance connected with this storm is, that it swept only over the lower part of the city. Above Eighty-first street there was only a slight sprinkling of rain.

A sloop, during the squall, ran against the Laight street dock and had a part of her bow carried away. A man was knocked overboard, but he was soon rescued by his friends. The effects of the thunder storm of Sunday were much

A sidewalk in Barrow street, near Hudson street, caved in during the rain, and three men were precipitated into an old well that was thus uncovered. One of them, named John Hanlin, was much higher preports of less of them, and the was the strength of the was the several places in the city of New York was struck by lightning, prompts me to this labor.

Many persons suffer greatly from fear during thunder storms, and there are cases in which death has resulted from such fears. There are thunder storms in which the stoutest heart sinks amid the terrors of the storm, and feels the need of protection. Our lightning memoranda, for the last thirteen years, gives the total of 750 deaths by lightning within the field of our research—the wounded we have not counted—the number is however, very great. The above does not include lightning on the sea. Of the number killed one only was in a building furnished with metalic conductors, and that one was at Little Prairie, We consin, in the summer of 1855.

No case of loss of life by lightning has ever occurred within the field of our research, in a railroad car, steamboat, occan steamer, iron ship, iron house, or warehouse, silled with bar iron, or in a vessel furnished with lightning conductors; or in a house having lightning rod appendages, with the exception of the case stated above at Little Prairie, Wisconsin. These facts are sufficient to dispei the very general belief that metals are dangerous, from a supposed attraction for lightning. Stoamboats have been in the more than fifty years, railroad cars more than thirty, and iron ships and iron buildings more than twenty years. Millions on millions of persons have during that time been in steamboats, railroad cars, iron ships, iron buildings, and in vessels and buildings furnished with metallic conductors, during thunder storms, and their exemption during so long a period is the most convincing testimony in favor of protection that can be desired. Persons who suffer from fear during thunder storms may, therefore, rest in safety and confidence if they can reach a railroad car, steamboat, tren ship or iron house, or in a building or vessel furnished with metallic conductors made of five-sixteenths of an inch iron wire, and sloops of war of one-fourth in diameter of iron wire.

The Nacogdochos (Texas) Chronicle says that General Houston, while lately in that town, indicated to his friends his entire want of confidence in the success of the present American party, and his total disinclination to support either the platform or the nominee. "The party," adds the Chronicle, "to which he allied himself for great and noble purposes, has become the tool of selfish poli-ticians, to whose schemes he cannot lend the sanction of

But this honor, it seems, by a statement in the Cincinnati Guette, was conferred spon him on condition that he would take a pledge to abstain from the use of intoxicating drinks. This promise be made before the Convention, and agreed in case of failure to keep the pledge, that he would with-draw from the canvass if it should be before the election, and resign office in case of it occurring after he should be elected. The Cincinnati Enquirer (democratio) admits the fact, but says that the pledge was not to take effect until after his election as Governor. It seems that he has been drinking freely since he took the pledge, and the Cincinnaii Gazette asks whether he will resign?

The Wheeling (Va.,) Intelligencer and Dalston (Ga.,) North Times, both old line whig journals, have come out in favor of Buchanan and the democracy.

The Providence Journal, whig and republican, says there are courses open to the opposition, either to unite upon one man or to give up the fight. There is no sense in dividing between two condidates. Such a union as might be made would bring into the field strong elements of success, and would be pretty likely to carry the House of Representatives, even if it failed of electing the President. The advantage of this first, would of itself be enormous, and would contribute immensely to the safety and repose of the country. If the sectional party which Mr. Buchanan represents, and which is only the party of the South, without one truly national idea, except the division of the spoits of the federal government, shall succeed in all the branckes of the government, then we are but a province of South Carolina. a province of South Carolina.

Lola Montes at Ballarat, Australia.

POLICE COURT, FERRUARY 26.

Before Captain Vignelles.

LOLA MONTES VS. H. SERFAMP, LIBEL.

In this case Mr. Lewis appeared for the complainant, and Mr. Trench for the defendant. The proceedings were opened by the Clerk of the Court-reading the information of Madame Lola Montes, sworn before Mr. Warden Daly. The information set forth that Mr. H. Seekamp, as the editor, proprietor and published certain malicious and defamatory libels regarding the character of Madame Lola Montes, which appeared in his journal on the 18th, 19th, 20th, 21st, and 22d of February. The information particularised the following as libellous:

First, the undermentioned extract from the letter of "Civis," which appeared in the Times of the 18th last "The press should be a moral guide to the people; and how can it discharge that duty when it fosters an unhealthy excitement about one, who, to say the least, has no claim on our respect, and whose notoriety is of an unenviable kind."

The next publication complained of was a portion of a letter signed H. Seekamp, in which the writer said;

"You say that I ate with you and drank with you;" I wonder you did not go further, but perhaps you could not call upon Mr. Crosby to prove that."" The information complained that this alleged fibel had been republished in the paper of the 22d. After the infor nation had been read, Madame Lola Mentes was sworn to the truth of its statements.

Mr. Lowis said that there was a precedent in the case in the paper of the 22d. After the information had been read, Madame Lola Mentes was sworn to the truth of its statements.

Mr. Lewis sail that there was a precedent in the case of Ireland vs. Strachan, which would justify his worship in committing the defendant for trial for libel on an information sworn before a magistrate. In the case he cited Mr. Surt, in Melbourne, had pursued that course, His Worship to Madame Lola Montes—Do you swear that the allegations in the letters complained of are false? Madame Lola Montes—I declare that the statements are false and libellous.

Mr. Trench having intimated that the defence would be reserved, his Worship said that he must send the case to Geolong for trial.

Mr. Seekamp.—I am quite willing, your worship, that the case should go to Geolong.

Mr. Lewis said his worship had power to send the case either to Melbourne or Geolong.

Madame Lola Montes—I should prefer that the case went to Melbourne.

Madame Lola Montes.—I should prefer that the case went to Melbourne.

His worship intimated that the Circuit Court at Geelong was the proper place to send the case to.

Mr. Trench said that he considered the information sworn to was illegal, inasmuch as the consent of the Supreme Court ought to have been first obtained.

Mr. Lewis repeated his former statement, that the case of Ireland vs. Strachan was a proof that Madame Lola Montes had pursued a legal course.

His worship overruled Mr. Trench's objection.

Mr. Seekamp was then committed to take his trial at the Circuit Court of Geelong, on the 10th of April, being admitted to bail himself in £300, and two sureties in £150 cach.

The Court was crowded with spectators, who appeared to take the greatest interest in the proceedings. The members of the legal and theatrical professions mustered very strongly, the latter forming a kind of guard of honor to Madamus.

Shir Atalanta.—We find in Galignanis Messenger of the 9th inst. the following particulars of the mitiny on board of the ship Atalanta. Capl. Montell, before noticed:—

The Marseilles journals speak of the arrest of the entire crew of an American yessel, under the following circumstances:—The clipper Atalanta left Marseilles for Almeria on the 20th May with a crew of twenty-one sailors, composed chiefly of Italians. The men displayed from the commencement a mulinous disposition, which at last induced the captain, named Montell, to place the most mulinous in confinement. The ship was then oil the coast of Valencia. Capt. Montell, in order to try the intentions of the men, sont the crew to do something connected with the navigation of the vessel, but was not obeyed. The mate, on arguing with the nean on their conduct, received several stabs with a knife, whilst the captain was maltreated and bound with ropes. The mulneers then took command of the vessel, and changed her course towards the Levant, but in passing by Marseilles they determined to anchor somewhere near the coast to get an additional supply of water and provisions. They accordingly signalled for a pilot, and one soon came on board. This latter was informed by the captain of the state of matters, and be promised to communicate with the officer of the American frigate Constellation, then at Marseilles. This was done, and forty marines specify the marines, who by dint of sabre cuts forced them to dekond to the deck where they were taken prisoners and convoyed to tort St. Nicolas by the naval gendarmerie. So the matter remains at prosent.

DAYE'S LIFE SAYING RAFT—We were shown yesterday a raft made for the Philadelphia Ferry Company, which, it was stated, would sustain 150 persons in the water. It weighs between three and four huntred pounds, and could be thrown from a burning or sinking vessel in a minute or two. In view of the accidents that have occurred of late, we think every ferry boat and excursion steamer should be provided with one or more of the above or some other life saving rafts. It is the invention of Mr W B Dayis, who has also invented a life preserver, which would be useful for vessels to carry in case a person should fall overboard.

Shir Golden Gatz, Dewing, hence for Bombay, put into Pernambuso 9th ult, in distress, having lost everything above her lower masts in a white squall in latitude 8 N. She had her spars alongside on the 20th ult, and would sail in about 14 days from that time.

BRIG A HAYPORD (of Bangor), Bartlett, from New York for Honduras, with a cargo of general merchandise, went ashore on Triangle Reef 1st ult. The master and crew are said to have arr at Belize, Hon, 5th inst, and were about seturning with lighters, to ascertain if the vessel could be got off.
